Albanian Campaign Is Reported Stalled by Italians

(By The Associated Press)
Britain stepped up her defense with twin measures to meet the threat of a grand-slam German invasion bid which informed sources in Washington predicted would come in April or May—with 36,000 Nazi warplanes to lead the assault.

King George VI issued a royal proclamation ordering men aged 18-19 and 37-40 to register for military service.

At the same time, the government moved toward drafting women into vital war industries to hasten the production of arms and munitions.

The registration call was the second in less than two weeks. As Greece's strong man, Premier Metaxas, died, inkblings appeared that the Aegean kingdom's counter-invasion into Albania may have stalled under increasing Italian pressure.

No Notable Advance
Since the capture of Kilsura in central Albania on January 10, Greek communiques have noted only the repelling of fierce Italian counter-attacks—without a single notable advance.

Again today, a Greek government spokesman said two Fascist attacks near Kilsura had been driven back with the Greeks inflicting "heavy losses" and taking 70 prisoners.

Premier Mussolini's high command, however, asserted that the Italians had seized "an important position" from the Greeks, along with the capture of prisoners and arms. The high command also reported the bombing of Salonika and the railway line to Athens.

On the Libyan desert front, the daily Fascist war bulletin said a British armored division knifing into the North African colony below Derna was thrown back by Italian troops with "noteworthy losses."

Dispatches from Cairo, Egypt, said strong British motorized units were sweeping south and west of Derna, jeopardizing all of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's remaining troops in eastern Libya.

With the British already controlling 100,000 square miles of Italian territory in the north, news came yesterday of development of a new front in the war threatening Premier Mussolini's African empire.

The new thrust—launched in the wastes of the Libyan desert—was reported to be the work of a "free French" camel corps which fought its way more than 200 miles into southwestern Libya from Chad, French Equatorial Africa. This force was said to have driven an Italian garrison from the oasis of Fezzan and raided Marzouk, a Libyan provincial capital 700 miles southwest of Derna.

De Gaulle Cooperates
General Charles de Gaulle, leader of "free French" forces, has been reported to have 35,000 troops under his command, and it was believed in Cairo that the majority of these were cooperating in the African campaign.

Meanwhile, on another African front—2,000 miles southeast of Derna—British supported by native troops were reported to have driven halfway across Eritrea, closing in an Agordat and Barentu.

Bad weather again curtailed the cross-channel operations of the German and British air forces last night. Some German air activity—apparently a mine-laying sortie—was reported off the British west coast, but London, which was under prolonged attack yesterday, had its ninth raidless night. There was a brief alert in the capital this morning.

In Bremen, Grand Admiral Raeder, German fleet commander, told dock workers the Nazi navy had destroyed 6,300,000 tons of British shipping in the war.

Government Tells U. S. Firms to Oust Pro-Axis Workers

Word From Latin America Causes State Branch to Urge Complete House Cleaning

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—The United States government, it was learned today, has instituted an aggressive drive to have American firms "house clean" their Latin-American branches of all anti-American or pro-Axis personnel. Convinced by confidential reports of widespread subversive activities in most of the 20 American republics, the state department and other vitally interested government agencies are applying "diplomatic pressure" to enlist the help of export industries in combating the situation.

The objects of the "house cleaning" fall into two general classes: Employees or agents of United States oil, steel, automobile, electrical supply and other firms in Latin America who are considered potential "fifth columnists" or who have engaged in anti-American or pro-Axis propaganda and other activities.

Coryzsis Succeeds Metaxas Bank of Greece Director Is Invested With Power by King Immediately Upon Death of Dictator, 70

Athens, Jan. 29 (AP)—Premier John Metaxas, 70, dictator of Greece nearly five years, died today after a brief illness from a throat infection, and King George II swiftly organized a new government which he said would carry on the war against Italy until victory was achieved.

A royal proclamation announced that Alexander Coryzsis, governor of the National Bank of Greece, had been named to head a government composed of all present ministers.

Coryzsis and the ministers took the oath of allegiance in the presence of the monarch at 10 a. m. (3 a. m., E. S. T.)—just three hours and 40 minutes after Metaxas died at his home in Kip-hissia, suburb of Athens.

Metaxas's death followed a throat operation. He had been ill since Saturday.

(Censorship forbade disclosure of the immediate cause of death, but diplomatic sources in Bern, Switzerland, said Metaxas died of heart disease.)

The Greek people, the king's proclamation said, received "the sad news in calm and with absolute confidence in the king, and the government is decided to carry on the victorious struggle."

Gayda Declares U. S. Policy Is Dynamite

Rome, Jan. 29 (AP)—Virginia Gayda, foremost editorial spokesman for Fascist Italy, declared today that the United States policy of aiding Britain is a violation of neutrality like-ly to involve the United States in war through "legitimate reaction" of the Axis powers.

"The increase of American aid to England, far from not drawing the United States into war, brings her nearer the conflict by deliberate plan," Gayda wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia.

The United States, he declared, should not believe she can continue this policy "without finding some unforeseen and quite unpleasant reaction at the end of the path."

Truck Driver Dies Following Crash On Rosoff's Hill

Paul H. Boehlke, 33, Hurt Fatally at Marlborough; Mee Tells Troopers His Car Skidded

Paul H. Boehlke, 33-year-old truck driver, of Rensselaer, died at 3:30 o'clock this morning at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, as a result of injuries which he suffered when his large trailer-truck and a north-bound car operated by James Mee, employee of the Chinese Restaurant at 304 Wall street, this city, collided shortly after midnight on Rosoff's Hill, Marlborough.

Boehlke was driving down the grade in a southerly direction while Mee was coming north. About in front of the James McLaughlin home at the upper bend of the Rosoff Hill the Mee car apparently skidded on the snow packed highway and into the path of the truck. When the two machines collided the truck ran down the grade a distance and then overturned in the ditch on the westerly side of the road. The driver was pinned in the cab of the truck when the trailer portion jack-knifed and piled up on top of the truck.

Rescuers worked for nearly an hour to release the unconscious driver from the cab where he had been pinned. It was necessary to attach a cable and haul the trailer off before the driver could be released. Dr. W. B. Harris of Marlborough was summoned and the driver was taken to the McLaughlin home and treated pending arrival of the ambulance. His condition was known to be critical. Unconscious after the crash, Boehlke gained consciousness while at the McLaughlin house and gave the State Troopers his version of the crash. Sergeant E. J. Hulse and Trooper Benson investigated the accident and today were continuing that examination.

The driver of the truck suffered a fractured skull, shoulder injuries and other severe injuries including internal hurts.

Mee told the Troopers that he was proceeding north in his car alone when the car skidded on the snow packed pavement and went over to the path of the truck. According to the Troopers the skid of Boehlke tallied with that of Mee.

Passing truckmen stopped to give aid and worked for about an hour before the driver could be removed after the heavily loaded trailer had been hauled from the truck cab.

Mr. McLaughlin summoned medical aid as soon as the crash happened but it was not until Boehlke had been removed from the truck that Dr. Harris was able to give the man any examination or render aid.

The Mee automobile was damaged.

Huge Supply Bill Recommended by House Committee

Measure Totals More Than Billion, Includes Fund for President's Use in Emergency

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—An "independent offices" supply bill totaling $1,404,576,838 and including a new emergency fund of $125,000,000 to be spent at the discretion of President Roosevelt, was recommended to the House today by its appropriations committee.

At the same time, the committee recommended a special appropriation of $175,000,000 for the war department to finance advance purchases of clothing and equipment for the army.

This was done, the committee explained, to enable the department to plan its purchases beyond the end of the present fiscal year on June 30.

The measure provides money to operate such independent federal agencies as the maritime commission during the fiscal year beginning July 1. It made relatively few reductions in so-called non-defense expenditures.

The total of the bill was $146,000,000 greater than was last year's appropriation for similar purposes and the committee said this was due chiefly to the inclusion of the President's emergency fund.

Similar Fund Set Up
A similar fund was set up last session and Mr. Roosevelt has used it for numerous purposes, including the start of construction on air-naval sites acquired from the British.

In approving his request for a new emergency fund of $100,000,000 in cash and $25,000,000 in contractual authority, the committee said that it had no desire to "hamper or obstruct" his use of the money, but "it feels very strongly that it should be reserved for use in connection with items which are unusually emergent in character."

"During hearings on the bill," the report said, "the attention of the committee was called to allocations from emergency funds for activities which were not so intimately connected with national defense that a specific appropriation could not have been requested from Congress in the usual way."

The report did not specify what those allocations were.

In addition to the new emergency fund, the committee also recommended an appropriation of $100,000,000 to liquidate contractual obligations incurred by the President last year in connection with war and navy department emergency activities.

Other Increases
Among the other major increases recommended, the committee listed $15,500,000 for the maritime commission; $8,674,892 for the selective service system; $4,800,000 to the Tennessee Valley Authority; $3,000,000 for defense activities of the civil service commission and $2,401,910 for the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

The major decreases listed included $34,005,240 lopped from the Federal Works Agency; $305,000 in foreign service pay adjustment; $480,000 from the Thomas Jefferson memorial commission and $175,000 as a result of expiration of the maritime labor board.

The committee recommended the full budget estimate of $160,000,000 to replenish the maritime commission's ship construction fund, plus contractual authorizations totalling $180,000,000. The latter is required, the committee said, to enable the commission to resume its regular program of 50 ships a year, starting July 1.

Sightseeing Attraction
West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 29 (AP)—The liner Manhattan, aground on a sand bar for the past 17 days, has become a top sightseeing attraction. Throngs of curious spectators tramp from a paved highway through a swamp to the ocean's edge to view the vessel 300 yards away. Others pay 50 cents or more for places on small boats which circle the liner.

Local Attendance Greater Than That of First Day at Rochester; Prof. J. A. Evans of Cornell Leads Discussion on Various Problems

Photos will be found on page 8, and papers on topical discussions as follows: Dr. J. M. Hamilton, page 10; Dr. R. W. Dean, page 10.

Fine weather greeted the members of the New York State Horticultural Society and others attending the opening session of the Eastern Meeting of the society, which is in progress in Kingston today and through Friday.

A crowd of upwards of 200 members greeted President Percy Morgan when he called the first program session to order shortly after 10 o'clock this morning.

These sessions are being held in the Common Council chamber in the city hall and one member was heard to remark that the attendance here at the opening session was much better than at the annual meeting held in Rochester two weeks ago.

The meeting this morning was devoted to a discussion of insect and disease problems. Prof. J. A. Evans of Cornell spoke and led the discussion on insect problems in 1940. Dr. P. J. Chapman of the Geneva Experiment Station told some new facts about oil sprays and Dr. R. W. Dean of the Poughkeepsie Experiment Station spoke about the European Red Mite. Last speaker of the morning was Dr. J. M. Hamilton of the Geneva Experiment Station.

This afternoon's session opened at 1:30 with a "Question Box," a feature of the opening at each session during the meeting. There was an address of welcome by Mayor C. J. Heiselman, followed by President Morgan's annual address and the report of Secretary-Treasurer Roy P. McPherson.

Cultural Problems
The remainder of the afternoon was devoted to diversification and cultural problems, with A. David Davies of Congers chairman. Carl Wooster of Union Hill talked on Diversification for Profit; Henry Lawrence of Germantown and Charles F. Beck of Poughkeepsie told of "Growing Experiences—how we are meeting our problems"; Dr. M. B. Hoffman of Cornell gave some ideas on how to balance production and color, one of the problems in fruit growing today being how to maintain production without hurting color.

Tonight at the Governor Clinton Hotel there will be a general session, with Theodore E. Cross of Lagrangeville as chairman. The talks will be illustrated by slides and motion pictures. Prof. C. W. Huff of Cornell University will show work under way on contour planting; Dr. Palm of Cornell will show pictures of the Japanese beetle and how it works, and Prof. Evans of Cornell has a film that tells the story of apple production in New York state, with some good shots of the Hudson Valley. There will be pictures showing apples "from the blossom to the pantry," and the making of apple packages.

There are competitive exhibits between high school departments of agriculture and between 4-H Clubs.

Prizes consist of ribbons, cash and apple trees. The fruit was judged this morning and prize awards will be announced at the banquet Thursday night.

The work of preparing for and overseeing and arranging the exhibits has fallen largely on Chairman Cyril G. Small, assistant agent of the Ulster County Farm Bureau and Edmund R. Bower, Ulster county 4-H agent. Assisting during the show are Arthur Willing (Continued on Page Eight)

Morgenthau Says Treasury to Lose Borrowing Powers in Four Months

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today the treasury would run out of borrowing powers in four months, and appealed for an increase in the federal debt limit from $49,000,000 to $65,000,000,000.

Testifying in support of a bill to make the increase, the treasury head told the house ways and means committee that his department had plans for the sale of "securities attractive to all classes of investors" to satisfy the overwhelming desire on the part of nearly every man, woman and child to make some direct and tangible contribution to the national defense.

Although not describing these securities in detail, he said the bill would permit the treasury to issue small denomination savings bonds and savings certificates as well as the regular types of securities.

Foresees Crisis

Says Aid Bill Would Stiffen Anglo Morale During Crisis

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson today defined the objective of the aid-to-Britain bill as the purchase of time—"the time necessary to arm and protect ourselves."

The United States is forced to buy the time, he declared, "and we are buying time from the only nation which can sell us that time."

Appearing before the Senate foreign relations committee, the war department chief renewed his advocacy of the legislature to meet "the extraordinary emergency which the aggressor nations have created for this country."

In a formal statement he marshaled his additional arguments for the bill under these headings: That Great Britain, given help, was in a position to prevail; That the Axis powers were vulnerable in many respects; That international law justified, rather than forbids, full aid to Britain; and That the bill is not dictatorial, but the proper action of a democratic government.

Committee Report Due
While the Senate committee listened to Stimson, the House foreign affairs committee began a study of proposed amendments to the measure in hopes of getting it in final shape by tomorrow night.

The Democratic majority tentatively favored adding provisions limiting the bill's life to two years; banning the use of convoys; requiring periodic reports for Congress on lease-lend operations, and directing the President to consult with army and navy heads before transferring military equipment.

Advance indications were that a majority in both House and Senate committees would vote to include these sections—perhaps with tacit White House approval.

Under questioning, however, Stimson said he personally was "strongly opposed" to amending the administration's British aid bill prohibiting the use of American naval vessels to convoy war shipments.

"No one can tell what will happen in the course of this war which is going on in Europe today and getting nearer and nearer, in its effects, to this country every day," Stimson said.

As commander in chief of the army and navy, he added, the President has the power to direct movements of the navy. The secretary added:

"I think that for the Congress now to introduce a provision which, even if only by implication, sought to fetter a power which has existed in the President for 150 years would be a very unfortunate thing."

"You would have no doubt," asked Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.), "that if convoys were begun we would be in the war?"

"I have no such assurance," Stimson replied. "It's all speculation."

Stimson added he would have "no objection" to amending the legislation to require the President to make periodical reports to Congress on the progress of British aid and to provide a definite expiration date for the program.

Stimson, in his testimony, predicted that Britain would face a crisis this spring and summer. If she survives, he said, "the probability of an ultimate solution in favor of the democracies would be overwhelming."

Will Stiffen Morale
"The passage of this bill," he interjected, "will go far to stiffen the morale necessary for her to survive that crisis."

Speaking of Axis "vulnerability," Stimson said that "Italy is already in serious straits, and that the German army 'is spread out very thin and already in Italy and in Roumania and in Norway we begin to hear the creaks of"

Capital Sources Say Invasion Of Britain May Come in April Or May; Nazis Have 4 to 1 Edge

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Hitler's grand-slam bid to invade England can be expected in April or May, well-informed sources here now believe, and there will be 36,000 warplanes ready to hammer home the terrific Nazi onslaught.

They gave the Luftwaffe a 4-to-1 advantage over the R.A.F. for the attempt. They looked for a variety of German surprises, among them a secretly developed new pursuit ship and perhaps large scale use of torpedo planes against surface vessels. And they did not rule out poison gas.

Two of this nation's foremost military authorities, however, voiced their confidence yesterday that Great Britain would survive to win a final victory.

Victorious, With Help General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, said he believed that, given the American help contemplated under the lend-lease program, Britain would be victorious. He saw all signs indicating a supreme invasion attempt in the spring.

Much closer to the actual theatre of conflict, Admiral William D. Leahy, former chief of naval operations and now ambassador to France, declared at Vichy that in his opinion "the British government can and will prosecute the present war to a successful conclusion."

The comment of these two officers happened to coincide with the preview invasion picture presented by other sources.

These sources said that Germany could put 18,000 fighters and bombers in the air and have another 18,000 in reserve with 100 per cent pilot replacements.

They based their expectation of a new model pursuit ship on the "suspicious circumstances" that the latest type now being used by the Luftwaffe dates back to 1937.

If the titanic air struggle materializes, they said, the R.A.F.

would have one advantage in its ability to mass its strength over a limited area, but the Germans would be favored by the concentration of targets in England.

The largest number of German planes used against England at one time, available information indicates, was less than 2,000. Some military men believe that to put 18,000 planes in the air would require an enormous number of airports and at the same time create a staggering traffic problem in coordinating the take-off of planes with the landings of those returning for fuel or ammunition.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, Woodstock, Is Injured in Jump From 12-Foot Roof During Blaze

Flames in the studio living room of her home Tuesday forced Mrs. Elizabeth Hall of Rock City, Woodstock, to flee her home in scant night attire and after unsuccessful attempts to reach the ground floor, she was finally forced to crawl from a high window in her bedroom and jump to safety from a 12 foot high roof. The fire was discovered by her in the living room on the first floor of the house about 7 o'clock in the morning when she was awakened by smoke.

At the time the lower floor was filled with smoke and so heavy was the smoke on the stairway that efforts to reach safety by that means were prevented, although Mrs. Hall wet towels and attempted to gain the street to sound the alarm.

In her jump from the icy roof she suffered a severe back injury and unable to stand erect because of the injury she crawled on hands and knees to neighbors to give the warning. After summoning aid she was treated by Dr. Hans Cohn at a neighboring residence and later taken to a boarding house in the village.

Blaze Is Extinguished

Firemen responded quickly and the blaze was extinguished after doing considerable damage to the living room. Flames gained admission to the space between the wall and siding and the north side of the house was considerably damaged. A hole was also burned in the floor of the living room and the interior of the house was damaged by smoke and soot. Included in the articles which suffered damage were several valuable paintings and other rare articles gathered by Mrs. Hall during her travels.

Apparently the fire had started from an oil heater which was being used in the studio-living room as an auxiliary to the heating plant. Flames had gained considerable headway when first discovered by Mrs. Hall. The fire had evidently been burning for some time before Mrs. Hall was awakened but open windows in her bedroom and the fact that her door was closed kept the smoke from her bedroom. A hole burned in the floor led firemen to believe that the oil stove may have in some manner overflowed.

Twice driven back by heavy smoke despite use of wet towels Mrs. Hall was compelled to climb from a high window in her bedroom to a roof and then jump to the garden below. Her cries for aid were heard by nearby residents who attributed the calls to children and paid little attention. Mrs. Hall reached the LeRoy Har-

Fire Breaks Out Again

During the day carpenters were at work in the house placing protective boards to prevent damage from weather. The electric current, water and heater were turned off and at about 4 o'clock the workmen left and firemen made a final inspection of the premises, but about two hours later flames were again observed leaping high in the air. The fire department was summoned and responded within three minutes to find the fire had apparently broken out again to the siding but the fire was quickly extinguished. The second fire about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, was discovered by Miss Anita Smith, a neighbor, who summoned the firemen in time to prevent serious damage.

A son of Mrs. Hall, who resides in New York, was summoned to Woodstock. Mrs. Hall was alone in the house at the time of the fire early Tuesday morning. Extent of the damage will not be known until an appraisal of the furnishings can be made.

Municipal Civil Service Is Asked To Submit Names

With the new fire alarm transmitter to be placed in operation in the Central Fire Station on April 1, the Board of Fire Commissioners at the regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening asked the municipal civil service board to submit an eligible list from which two dispatchers to have charge of the new system could be appointed.

The fire board also asked that a date be fixed by the civil service board for holding a promotional examination for the new position of deputy fire chief, and also for the position of captain in the fire department.

Under the provisions of the long range program that the fire board has prepared, it plans to have two deputy fire chiefs, instead of the present one, and the number of

WINNING THE WAR

It may be true that Britain cannot "win the war" in the sense of gaining a complete victory over Germany. But in the present stage of the game it may be just as logical to say that Germany cannot win.

A German victory would mean that Hitler accomplished what he set out to do. For a while it looked as if he might do that. Nobody even now can be quite sure that he will not, by some superhuman combination of force and fraud, overrun Europe, enslave Britain and master a large part of the world. But at present, in the opinion of many American experts, the chances seem to be against it.

Col. Lindbergh and some others seem strangely blind to the changes that have come over the war picture lately. Italy, the Junior Axis power, has been virtually knocked out. Hitler failed last fall in his tremendous effort to invade England, and will find that island several times as strong if he tries again. He is now several months behind in his schedule of conquest, and for some time has been stalled in the Balkans, apparently waiting not only for better weather but for a "break." There is no evidence, in his procedure, of the confidence he formerly felt.

Meanwhile Britain's strength and confidence are rising, and from America goes an ever-rising stream of war supplies. These, along with more ships, are what Britain needs. If we do our part, in the form of this non-belligerent cooperation for our own benefit, evidently Britain and her associated Dominions may be counted on to do theirs.

The important thing is not to let ourselves be fooled by propaganda and red herrings. Democracy can win only by continuing to see clearly, by separating truth from falsehood, and by unifying the free peoples of the world in resistance against slavery.

MESSAGE TO WORKMEN

Many an eye has been caught, in turning the pages of a current weekly magazine, by a "Message to American Workmen of Foreign Blood," in the form of an advertisement by a manufacturer of turret lathes. It is an appeal for them, in a great emergency, to do their best for their employers and their country.

"You or your fathers," it says, "came to America to escape the brutal tyranny, the vicious oppression, that is ruling Europe today. You came to America to be free. Is that freedom worth working for now?"

"What can you do for your new country, for the future freedom of your children, for your own safety and security? Everything! America will be safe if it can defend itself. America can defend itself if you put your whole soul into it and work your level best now to produce what America needs."

"Sure, you're hearing the poisonous propaganda spread by America's enemies—'Don't work too hard.' They made it sound believable by saying, 'If you work hard and produce more, your job won't last so long.' The man who tells you that is a traitor. Your job will last only as long as America is free, and America will stay free only if you and everyone work for its freedom."

"There are 3,000 of us workmen (in this plant), many originally from Europe, but all of us Americans now. We don't make munitions, but we make the turret lathes necessary to produce munitions. We're working three full shifts, 24 hours a day, doing our level best. Will you do your best—and keep this country free?"

It is a noble appeal, nobly responded to.

HADRIAN'S STRAYED COIN

A nine-year-old boy not long ago picked up an odd-looking pebble at the foot of a mountain in Montana. Because it was different from his other pebbles he showed it to his father. The latter decided it was a coin and sent it to the United States mint.

It came back with the word that it was bronze and the suggestion that it be sent to the Smithsonian Institution for further examination. Experts there said it was a coin struck during the reign of the Roman emperor Hadrian about 1800 years ago. All this seems to be authentic. It promptly raises the question, "How came an old Roman coin to be lying at the base of a mountain in the Rockies?"

No one jumps to the conclusion that any Roman legionary dropped it there. There are various suggestions. An early explorer or trapper may have dropped it, or a later settler. It may have been brought by Spaniard or Frenchman or Englishman. The coin looked as though it had been there for a long time when the lad found it. It would be interesting to be able to trace the wanderings of that bit of money.

BALLISTICS RECORDS

A bill now before the Ohio legislature would require that ballistic measurements be made of bullets for every pistol or revolver before it could be sold. Two bullets fired from every such weapon would be filed in the office of the state bureau of criminal identification. The purpose would be to save time in checking by an expert after a gun had been used in committing a crime. Every bullet would be, if not a sleuth in itself, at least a detective's helper.

It sounds a little like a fingerprint record. Use of such measurements might not guarantee an end of crimes of shooting or even detection of every criminal using firearms. But the knowledge that they were filed with full information might be a crime deterrent. If the law proved to be as useful as it sounds, it should be widely adopted.

WHO KNOWS WHEN?

Speaker Sam Rayburn of the National House of Representatives says he doesn't oppose a time limit on the President's all-out aid bill if the limit is permitted to run concurrently with the emergency. The trouble with this is—who would decide when the emergency is over?

If both factions in Congress are as anxious to keep out of war as they say they are, then some sort of a formula for bringing about the necessary national safeguards ought to be found.

BILE-GALL-FOR GALL BLADDER PATIENTS

For years physicians have been trying to persuade patients with a slow or sluggish liver and a slow emptying gall bladder that better than all kinds of medicine is avoiding large meals, especially the foods rich in starch or fat. By eating small meals, four times a day instead of three large meals, there will be less work for and less congestion of, the liver.

When the patient is willing to exercise, exercises that squeeze the liver—bending exercises with knees straight, deep breathing exercises—will stimulate bile flow, prevent congestion of liver, and empty the gall bladder in less time.

What, however, can be done for those who continue to eat heavy meals or for those who will not or are unable to take exercise.

If there is not enough bile being manufactured by the system or if the bile is not flowing freely, then the use of bile or gall from cattle is coming into considerable use by physicians. When there has been an operation that has interfered with the manufacture or storage of bile, giving bile or bile salts stimulates bile formation and bile flow.

Drs. A. C. Ivy and A. L. Berman, Chicago, in Minnesota Medicine, state that many of the tablets containing bile salts contain other laxatives or purgatives also, whereas it is the bile salt (or gall) that is needed in liver or gall bladder patients. When it is desirable to give patients bile salts some dried animal bile or some preparation of bile salt should be given. These physicians point out that bile salts should not be given unless the liver or gall bladder are not working properly. The bile or gall acts as a sort of self-starter to the liver and gall bladder.

So far, "Not for the Meek" seems to fall perfectly into the long line of similar books which preceded it. But there are things which make a difference. The book's dignity leads its author into strange paths. She usually says, in impeccable prose, that such and such things are so, instead of laying them out for the reader so that he may see that they are so. The stature of the book is beyond the stature of the hero, especially in the early parts of the novel where in Martin never actually shows why things go so well for him.

The rise from farm boy to chief engineer is, for me, wholly incredible. And as for scope—700 pages is not enough room for practically all of America from the '80s down to date.

It would be a good joke on me if this were all true, wouldn't it? For the book could easily be fictionalized biography.

"Not for the Meek," by Elizabeth Dewing Kaup.

There has been an epidemic of novels such as the subject of today's sermon, Elizabeth Dewing Kaup's "Not for the Meek." This is an excellent example of the fever to put on paper every detail of a chosen "hero" which leads author after author into 700-page books that weigh heavy into the hand Mrs. Kaup's book has, as the jacket blurb promises, "dignity, stature and scope." For me it has too much of each of these indubitably good qualities.

It retells the male Cinderella story. Martin Lyndendal is a little Danish farm lad who "makes good." He first distinguishes himself by riding the neck of an angry bull. Next he gets himself into a mess while working as porter in a small Danish inn. Then he goes to sea, and sweeps through the various positions to that of chief engineer while still a boy. Then he lands in Pittsburgh, and swoops up through the steel industry to a commanding position, acquiring a wife and a somewhat mixed reputation the while. And when Mrs. Kaup opens her book we discover Martin a man in his seventies, committed to the job of remembering it all for the use of a biographer who must turn out the book a publisher wants.

The difficulty Martin faces is double. He is not sure that he wants a biography written in the mold the publisher insists is correct, and he sees quite plainly that he was never an Alger hero but always a lucky man. He might have made a thousand mistakes just as easily as he made a thousand right moves.

So far, "Not for the Meek" seems to fall perfectly into the long line of similar books which preceded it. But there are things which make a difference. The book's dignity leads its author into strange paths. ## Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Now it can be told:

With the possible exception of the visit of the King and Queen of England, there never have been such elaborate precautions here as were taken to guard President Roosevelt at his Inaugural.

Under the direction of Colonel Edmund W. Starling, who has been chief of the Secret Service White House detail for many years, everything that has been learned in all the Inaugurals since 1789 was put into practice.

Almost 3,000 extra men were brought into Washington to guard against any eventuality. Working with the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police under Major Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of these men ranged from truck traffic squads of a score of cities to details from the United States Marines and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

There were hundreds of firemen, about 500 marines, 350 of the best plainclothesmen from every city in the country, and at least 1,600 uniformed police officers.

'No Parking'

Even with the experience of the visit of the King and Queen to draw on, Colonel Starling and his staff worked for more than a month on the minutely-detailed plan of operation. First the traffic lanes into the Capitol, White House and one-mile parade zones were taken care of. A parking blackout about four blocks wide and more than a mile-and-a-half long was ordered from midnight to midnight on Inaugural day.

Lines of police, firemen and marines at hardly more than arms' length apart were formed from end to end of the parade route on both sides of the street.

Back of them, apparently wandering about through the crowds but actually walking a "beat" that took them more than a few yards in each direction were the hundreds of detectives, Secret Service men, and FBI agents. They reported at regular, frequent intervals to lieutenants. The lieutenants kept in constant touch with four captains in charge of the zones from Capitol Hill to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Proof of the effectiveness of this minute attention to detail was that there was not one civilian report of any suspicious incident which the guard had not already taken care of.

A man with a gun was arrested in the Court of Freedom. Colonel Starling afterwards described him to me as a "harmless individual who had no other thought than helping to guard the President, but we have to preserve our professional standing, you know."

A 71-year-old Spanish American war veteran who went about fiercely brandishing a sword was also taken into custody. Also another and younger man who ran about beating his breast like Tarzan and shouting "President Roosevelt spends too much money!" was hauled off to the hoosegow.

Not one of these men was taken at all seriously by the arresting officers and the fact that their infringements of the peace were so minor is an illustration of how much attention was given to the most minute occurrence.

'Nice Camera, Mister'

How the detectives worked may be demonstrated by repeating an incident that occurred to a friend of mine on the Capitol Plaza in front of the Inaugural stand. He's a camera fan and was in his seat before 11 o'clock to be sure that he had his candid camera sights set in plenty of time.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

On Thanksgiving Day, 1915, Kingston High School's first football team closed a most successful season by winning the championship of eastern New York when it defeated Mechanicsville at the Athletic Field by a score of 59 to 0. The local team during the season had defeated the high school teams of the Hudson Valley from Newburgh to Troy in the series of games that had been staged.

Kingston players who were in the lineup for the local high school in the closing game of the season were: Joyce, Gill, Bernstein, Hallinan, Macaulay, Palisi, Johnson, Gregory, Peheleman, Wheeler and Terwilliger.

With the formal opening of the newly completed high school following the summer vacation in 1915, it is interesting to recall that title to old Kingston Academy was deeded by the education board to the trustees of the academy at a meeting held on Friday evening, November 26, 1915.

When the historic old academy was deeded to the school authorities there was a string in the deed to the effect that when the building ceased being used as a high school that title reverted to the trustees.

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., had advocated that part of the old academy be used for grammar school purposes, but the trustees had refused to consider the suggestion.

The trustees, however, informed the education board that, when title had been passed to them that they intended to deed the land on which the academy stood to the city for use as a public park.

Shortly after title reverted to the trustees the old academy was demolished, and a little later the site was transformed into the present city park.

As I recall it the contract for taking down the historic old school was awarded to Peter Halloran of this city.

In September, 1915, two practical talks on "Making Good in Business" were delivered in the high school auditorium. Frank Jewel Raymond of Chicago, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

The local C. of C. offered prizes to the business women submitting the best essay based on the talks given by Mr. Raymond, and also a prize to the high school student submitting the best essay.

Miss Catherine M. Morgan of Pearl street in the Pardee Insurance Agency won the first prize for the business woman's essay while second prize was won by Miss Helen M. Thomas with Forsyth & Davis.

The student submitting the winning essay was Edward T. Stelle, Jr., of Albany avenue.

For refusing to sell his rifle to the South African government a farmer was fined and threatened with imprisonment.

Willkie's Trip to Europe Has Occasioned Much Talk of Political Nature and Some of It Is Significant

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 29.—Wendell Willkie's trip to Europe has occasioned a good bit of comment hereabouts which is not always expressed openly, but nevertheless contains a good deal of political significance.

Opinion is divided. Among those Republicans who have taken a firm position against any and all Roosevelt policies, there is a certain disappointment over Mr. Willkie's espousal of the lend-lease bill and his trip to Europe. Among those Republicans, on the other hand, who feel that the aid to Britain policy is popular, Willkie's course is staunchly defended.

Until events shape up more definitely and there is an opportunity to tell whether the Willkie leadership is or is not sustained by the trend of public opinion on the war issues the meaning of the Willkie adventure will not be definitely known.

But in party circles there is no doubt about it—there is a bitterness and severity about the criticism which is unmistakable. The former presidential candidate is accused of having deserted his party, of having gone over to the Roosevelt camp and of having gone back to the Democratic party from which he emerged so spectacularly last year.

Among the Democrats there is no feeling of disappointment at all because anything that divides the Republican party is considered all to the good of the cause. There is, on the other hand, a tendency to upbraid the Republicans for having denounced Willkie and a tendency, too, to argue that the Republican party would have been dominated by isolationist groups and made it impossible for Willkie to have functioned had he been elected president.

Unquestionably Willkie has risked a good deal by taking a firm stand behind the president's foreign policy. Many of those who are crying out that he is a turncoat did not evidently believe his campaign speeches about aid to Britain or else they thought that these were made for political effect in the campaign and were not sincere.

In any event, Mr. Willkie today has taken a position consistent with his campaign utterances and has done the unpardonable thing from the standpoint of orthodox Republicans—he has sided with Mr. Roosevelt. This same school of thought felt uncomfortable during the campaign because Mr. Willkie praised the objectives of the New Deal policies although differing with the manner of their execution. It is still an open question with many Republicans whether he would not have gotten more votes by standing forthrightly against any and all Roosevelt policies domestic and foreign and if he had in particular embraced the isolationist cause.

What some of these regular Republicans do not realize, however, is that the independent vote, especially that which came from the Democratic party, would have deserted Willkie had he taken any such position. Lew Douglas, for example, who was at the head of the Democrats for Willkie organization, told friends during the campaign that if Willkie veered from his aid to Britain position he would face a revolt among his own followers. Such an occurrence, it is contended by the independents would have destroyed all chance of getting the 5,000,000 extra votes which the Republican ticket polled last autumn in addition to the 17,000,000 votes that Landon polled in 1936.

Various political leaders in the Republican party dispute this reasoning and still feel that the party would have done better in 1940 with an orthodox Republican candidate. The prospects are that this division of opinion will continue and will be very influential in determining the candidate of the party in 1944. For whether or not Willkie is the party nominee himself, it is well known that he intends to maintain his Republican affiliation and will insist on what he considers the selection of a progressive nominee. It will be recalled that, while William Jennings Bryan was not the candidate of his party in 1912, he had enough influence to compel the selection of a progressive—Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Willkie tossed into the scrapheap, in the opinion of many Republicans, his chances for a 1944 nomination. But the friends of Willkie say, "wait until the war issues have developed further and see whether Willkie has or has not maintained his position of leadership with public opinion as a whole."

Anybody who can gain strength between elections among the voters who did not vote for him before is likely to wind up with a larger net than before because the regular Republicans, while fussing a good bit about party regularity, do vote the same ticket and will do so again, especially if the Democratic party maintains its radical position on public questions.

Forms For Making Returns

Forms for filing returns of income for 1940 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time—or on or before March 15 if the return is made on the calendar-year basis, as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors and from deputy collectors of internal revenue in the larger cities and towns. A person whose gross income for 1940 was derived from salary, wages, dividends, interest and annuities, and was not in excess of $5,000, should make his return on Form 1040-A. A person whose gross income was in excess of $5,000 or, regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents, or sale of property is required to use Form 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer who is liable for a return and is engaged in a business or profession is required to use Form 1040.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 15, 1941. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15 and December 15.

HOSTESS COMPLAINS TO EMILY POST ABOUT THOSE WHO DISREGARD R.S.V.P. ON ENGRAVED INVITATION

If Answers are Received From Half Those Invited it is Unusually Courteous Community

Since the rule we all go by says plainly, "Unless the wording includes R.s.v.p., one need not answer an engraved invitation to an at home," the only possible advice I can give to any hostess who wants to have some idea of the number of guests to provide for, is that she include the R.s.v.p. Not that this will bring complete replies! As all hostesses can testify, one who receives answers to half the invitations sent lives in an unusually courteous community. The following letter of protest against the impoliteness of typical guests will find an echo memory of many readers:

"I sent 300 invitations to an at home with dancing at a club and did not trust to leave off R.s.v.p. so included it and thought surely people would answer. I took the large ballroom at the club simply because only about half the people wrote, and as it turned out, I could have engaged the smaller ballroom and saved quite a lot of money on that and food. Won't you write something about this so some of these careless people can see themselves in print?"

A reader suggests that if there were only some way to attract people's attention to the R.s.v.p., "Kindly Reply" or "Please Answer," that would solve this situation. To this, I can't give much encouragement. I can at least say that one daring hostess once had "Please Reply" engraved in RED. Since no one so far as I know has copied her, the evidence would seem to be that she had small success. A bright red "PLEASE ANSWER" would certainly be conspicuous on an engraved form, and it might for the time being at least bring results. On the other hand, it might merely cause criticism! (I should rate this last as a certainty.)

Chiffon in Winter

Dear Mrs. Post: Is chiffon all right in winter? I wore this same evening dress last spring and once again during the summer, and since it is still in good condition and I am going to this dance with a different group of friends, I'd like to wear it again. But is a dress like this suitable for the cold months?

Answer: This is one of the things to which I can't give a blind answer, further than to say that if the skirt is very full and not in the least sleazy looking, it should be all right since chiffon is a material that is seen all the year around. But in addition to having full skirts, the chiffon dresses worn in winter are usually trimmed to give them more body.

A Second Wedding Ceremony

Dear Mrs. Post: In your opinion is it in questionable taste for a husband and wife to renew their vows and have a second marriage ceremony at their 25th wedding anniversary party?

Answer: To me it makes no sense, unless an especial adaptation of the marriage service may have been written purposely for such a ceremony. But if the clergyman has no objection to officiating and the "bride and groom" want to repeat their vows, it seems to me that it concerns no one else.

Highland, Jan. 29 — About 50 persons attended the old-fashioned party held at the high school sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association Friday night. The three-piece orchestra led by Jesse Robinson played for the square dances and the Virginia reel. The dances were led by Miss Viola Wood, girls' physical instructor in the school. The grand march gave opportunity to display the costumes, which Mrs. William Denby judged. Mrs. Edison Dimsey wore her mother's wedding dress of gray cashmere and won first prize. Miss Nancy Rathbone in a quaint old gown of low neck was second and Miss Carol Clarke figured third. In the game of points Miss Frances Simpson won the honors. Games in which adult and young people took part gave enjoyment to all. Others in costume were the Misses Ruth Haynes, Doris Coutant, Margery Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burrell, Mrs. John Gaffney, Mrs. Arthur Clarke, who was general chairman. The amount received will add $16 to the hot lunch fund. Cake and coffee was served. Many people had arranged to attend and parties were made up for bridge, but owing to the storm plans were all changed.

"Why, I just did a hole in one!" yelled the golfer, a wild gleam of delight in his eyes.

"Did you?" asked his wife, placidly.

Magic Spring

By ALLEN EPPES

YESTERDAY: David and Polly are a little cool toward each other, but their engagement is not broken. And Margo just has told Warren McNeill that she is not going to marry him, and that she is going up to New York for another fling. Now Warren has gone off to Portsmouth to get the analysis of the water from the spring at David's old, and unsuccessful, inn, and David is starting once more to put the place in shape. Maybe for a sanatorium.

Talk With Father

WHEN he was free to leave the plant late in the afternoon David hurried off to the cottage as quickly as he could.

"Listen son," he said to Peter, "we're grabbing a cold snack and eating it as we go. I want to get out to the Inn, and get to work on the fountain."

"Gee, Cousin David, that'll be swell!" said Peter. He helped David wrap up some cold meat sandwiches, and some made of jelly. "Will you have the colored lights under water, and everything?"

"I hope so," said David. "The main thing now is replacing the rusty pieces of pipe, and getting the water turned on. Come on, let's be on our way."

"Going to take Polly with us?" Peter asked, as they got into the car.

"Not this time, Peter," David replied. "We men will get the plumbing work done—and surprise her."

"Gosh—that'll sure make her open her eyes! Seeing the fountain working—and all those colored lights."

"Don't count too much on the colored lights," David warned. "It takes money to have the electric current turned on. We may have to do without the lights for a while."

"Okay, Cousin David. Just seeing the fountain spouting will be something."

They drove out of the Wiley yard.

"How many steps today—without the brace?" David asked.

"Thirteen," said Peter. "I tried to make it fourteen, on account of thirteen being unlucky, but—"

"Oh, that old thirteen business is just a gag! How do we know but what it turns out to be your lucky number?"

Peter sighed. "You sure are a comfort to me, Cousin David," he said. "I just can't get to feeling too sorry for myself when you're around."

"Don't ever feel sorry for yourself," said David. "It never gets you anywhere."

"Were you ever sorry for yourself, Cousin David?"

"Once or twice, yes," David replied. "But I got over it."

Peter looked at him, wondering what made his cousin sorry for himself, but deciding that maybe it would be better not to ask. Cousin David might not like being questioned.

Talk With Father

MARGO was talking with her father in the large living room of the big house on the hill.

"And that," she said, "is the whole thing in a nutshell, Dad."

Andy Powers said: "I suppose an old man hasn't much to say about what his daughter does nowadays. But I was hoping you'd decide to stay here with me. After all, I did build this house for you, Margo. If I'd known that you never intended living in such a place, I'd have been content with hotel life."

"But, Dad, there's so little here for me!" Margo cried.

"Polly and David seem to find plenty," Andy retorted. "And so does Dr. McNeill. By the way, Margo, he's a mighty fine young fellow. David told me at the plant today that he had finally decided to settle down in Ardendale."

"Yes, Dad, I was going to tell you that myself. Warren was here last evening. We had a talk."

"And as a result you're going away again?"

"Warren is partly to blame," "Why so?"

Margo told her father part of her conversation with Warren, and then waited for him to speak. "I can understand his feeling as he does about a big city hospital," Andy Powers said finally. "Too much routine and too little human contact. Warren will make a splendid addition to Ardendale. I'm tickled pink he's bought out part interest in old Dr. Ben's practice."

"Are you, really?" said Margo. "Of course. My whole life is bound up in Ardendale, and I naturally want to see it grow and prosper. It needs men like Warren McNeill and David Wiley—men who have good heads on their shoulders."

Margo flared. "You're all alike, you men!" she said. "You just don't get my point of view at all."

"I do," her father said. "And I'm beginning to wonder if I'm not responsible for that point of view."

"What do you mean, Dad?"

"I mean, perhaps if I hadn't given you so many advantages, if I hadn't been so eager to make a lady out of you, you would have been content with Ardendale's life."

"Dad, I wish you wouldn't talk like that," Margo said. "I've always thought ladies were born, not made. Besides—"

"Perhaps so," Andy Powers interrupted. "But background is important for women who are born ladies. Your background wasn't conducive to—well, to making a lady of you. When a girl is born on the wrong side of the tracks, Margo, she's got to study, work, and work like hell, to be the lady she wasn't born to be."

"But, Dad, I—I—"

"Oh, I know you're not to blame," her father rushed on. "I sometimes think that you'd probably have been content to stay here with me—grow up with boys and girls like David and Polly—if I hadn't started putting ideas into your pretty head."

"Would you prefer to have me more like David and Polly?" Margo asked.

"It's not that I don't love you as you are, Margo," her father replied. "I do. I'm proud of you—the way you look, the way you talk, the way you wear all your beautiful clothes. But, honey, just having you to look at when you choose to come and visit me isn't very satisfactory. It doesn't help my loneliness. Why—why—it's like having one of those fashion models you read about drop in and parade back and forth in front of me."

Margo came over and kissed her father's forehead.

"I'm sorry, Dad, that it's turned out like this," she said. "And maybe you're right—maybe it is your fault: me being like I am. You sort of—molded me into what I am—"

"She hesitated, and then went on. "Well, I'm going up to Long Island just the same. Perhaps I'll be able to think more clearly about all this when I'm not too close to you and Warren."

Andy Powers got up. He slipped his arm about his daughter's shoulders.

"All right, Margo," he said. "After all, you're free, white, and over twenty-one, and you have your own money. There's nothing I can do but wish you a pleasant journey."

"Thanks, Dad."

"When do you leave?"

"I thought I'd catch the express Saturday evening. I'll stay in New York Sunday night, and telephone Irene from there. She'll probably drive in from Long Island to get me."

"Then a round of gaieties, I suppose?"

"Yes, Dad. Irene and her crowd are always doing something."

"I see," Mr. Powers gave Margo's cheek a little pat. "I think I'll go up and stretch out for a little rest before dinner. We're working pretty hard at the plant nowadays. We've taken on a lot of new men, in order to fill orders. He walked to the door, and then turned. "I've got a lot of men on my payroll now, Margo. I'll have the largest payroll since the plant opened. Do you realize just what that means to me?"

"Making more money, I suppose," said Margo.

No, although that counts, of course," said Andy Powers. "It means more than that to me, Margo. It means that Andy Powers is in a position to give honest work to a lot of men who need it—men with families to support."

He watched his daughter's face. "I don't suppose that really gets over with you, honey. But it means a heck of a lot to your old dad."

"I'm glad," said Margo. "I'm glad of anything that gives you satisfaction, Dad."

Andy said, "Thanks," rather shortly. Then he went on up the wide, curving stairs.

Dissatisfied

MARGO stood where he had left her, frowning. Sometimes she wished her father was a little less interested in what happened to the people who worked for him, and a little more interested in what she thought and felt about things. It was better, she thought, for people to be more selfish. People like her father and Warren McNeill were always getting a rap look on their faces when they talked about people who needed things. It was all right, she knew, for men to be like that—but she wished they wouldn't overdo it, especially Warren and her father.

She remembered that she had invited three of her neighbors over for an hour of tennis, and hurried up to her room.

There, while she donned white linen tennis shorts, she made mental notes of the new gowns she would buy while in New York. Irene was a good one to shop with. She and Irene would have loads of fun visiting the smart shops, looking at this, looking at that.

While in the Jenkins kitchen, Aunt Susan and Polly were doing the supper dishes.

"Lord knows," said Aunt Susan, "being a spinster's nothing to boast about."

"Who's boasting about it?" said Polly. "And just what brought on such a statement?"

"You."

"Me?"

"Yes, Polly. Working in tea-rooms, and in millinery shops, allus job-hunting; when you could marry David Wiley and have a home."

"I thought I told you I didn't want to talk about that."

"You did. But you can't keep me from talking about it. I'm older'n you, Polly, and I've been a spinster for more years than I'd want the Ardendale gossip column to know about, and—"

Fire Chief Gives His Annual Report To City Fire Board

Two Lives Lost in Fires During 1940 and Loss Total Jumps Over 1939 Figure

An aged man and a six-year-old boy lost their lives in fires in Kingston during 1940 when the Kingston fire department responded to 345 calls during the year, according to the annual report of Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy. The fire loss in 1940 amounted to $28,966.10, an increase of $579.05 over 1939.

Two serious fires occurred in the city last year, one in the Kingston Machine and Foundry Company building and the other the Holy Cross parish house.

The boy who lost his life was Leonard Bailey, of 52 Delaware avenue, and the aged man was William DePew of 157 Hurley avenue. The fire chief's report also showed that 51 applications had been filed for the erection of residential buildings at an estimated cost of $475,369.50, an increase of $9,870.50 over 1939.

Fire Chief Murphy's report follows: To the President and Members of the Board of Fire Commissioners:

Gentlemen: I have the honor of submitting for your consideration and approval, the 32nd annual report of the Fire Department; year ending December 31, 1940.

The fire loss for the year 1940 was $28,966.10; an increase over 1939 of $579.05. Although we have had an increase in the fire loss, we have had a decrease in the per capita loss; the loss per capita being .98c. Sixty-eight fires have occurred during the year which were extinguished by owners or occupants of the buildings, fire department not called, the losses paid on these fires range from $1.50 to $300.00 with a total of $2,972.05. Nine smudge losses to the amount of $2,133.78 were paid. The smudge loss is a damage caused by smoke due to poor combustion in the furnace or stove and wherein no actual fire damage is caused by fire outside of furnace. This is heavier machinery) in the municipal barn on East O'Reilly street.

Percy Morgan Opens Meetings

First Exhibit in 1933

Remembering the first exhibit here in 1933 and taking note that this year the stage and upstairs rooms are being pressed into service, and considering the exhibits shown at the barn, the "first night" would be inclined to believe that exhibits are again well ahead of former years. However, Secretary McPherson said that such is not the case and both number and size of exhibits have been cut down this year. Indirectly, the war, with the resultant defense program and preparations in this country, is held responsible for the reduction. The closing of the State Armory to public events made it necessary to return a greatly enlarged exhibition to the auditorium and even with the extra rooms pressed into service not all the exhibitors accommodated at the Armory could find room, even with the size of their exhibits reduced and economy practiced in allotting floor space.

However, there are numerous exhibits of machinery, nursery stock, spraying materials and commercial lines of general interest to farmers and horticulturists. Geneva and Cornell have interesting exhibits, the 4-H people and other junior horticulturists have a good display of apples in a large upstairs room, there is a cookery demonstration booth by the 4-H homemakers and the public will find other exhibits of interest.

Federal Display

The average citizen, not too much concerned about how apples are grown, or just which disease it is that make him "cuss" his grocer when he is handed a bad lot, probably will find the exhibit by the Federal Wildlife Service of more special interest. The exhibit is in one of the rooms in the wings, off the stage, and is in charge of Walter W. Dykstra of Amherst, assistant district agent, and Howard Merrill of Storrs, Conn. The visitor will find two porcupines, only six weeks out of the Vermont woods and yet tame enough to be let out of their cages and climb a small "tree" after the apple that Mr. Dykstra hold just above their heads. Mr. Dykstra says that they are really not too tame, to outsiders, especially, but "tolerant if they are hungry." Then there is "Pedro," a red-shouldered hawk captured last spring and who really is quite tame. Pedro eats mice, rats and insects for the big part of his diet, and is listed as one of the "good" hawks.

Live mice of several species, rats, muskrat (brings in more money for his fur than any other animal in the U. S.), a peculiar kangaroo rat that eats seeds and doesn't need water, stuffed birds and animals complete the collection.

Interesting Place

The stage, generally, is really an interesting place this year. The Geneva experiment station has a collection of transparencies showing various apple insects at work and the results of their work, and apples infested by different insects and diseases. The station also has a good size exhibit showing plates and baskets of over a dozen varieties of apples, which will interest people who like to see the different kinds of apples and note their names. One of the most attractive plates was that containing Red Spy apples, a beautiful bright red, usually solid color. Another striking apple was the Starking, a very red apple, with spots that remind one of the spicy Spitzbergen.

The Department of Pomology of Cornell University has an interesting exhibit on the stage, illustrating the working of the comparatively new controlled atmosphere storage of apples. Under the system apples are kept in a tight storage, at 40 degrees temperature, with an atmosphere containing five per cent carbon dioxide and two per cent oxygen. As a result, McIntosh apples with normal storage of four to six months can be kept a year or more. They show two packages of apples—one from the 1939 crop and the other last fall's apples—and if anything the year-old apples look the better of the two. The process went into limited commercial use last year.

Use of fruit juices is promoted by a booth on the stage at which the visitor may purchase apple juice, apple-raspberry juice and cherry cocktail.

No Commercial Packages

One exhibit that is missed this year is the display of commercial packages of apples, purchased at random from various sources and graded by Department of Farms and Markets inspectors, who then marked them as to the grade claimed and the grade found. Spencer Duncan, senior expert in marketing, who has had charge of this work during past years, is attending the present exhibition and judged the grading and packing exhibits shown by the junior horticulturists. Judging of all the junior apple exhibits, outside of this, was under way this morning by Professor Lewis M. Van Alstyne of the Geneva Experiment Station, assisted by Percy Eastman of the Department of Farms and Markets.

A restaurant service is being conducted at the Auditorium as during previous exhibitions. It is in charge of the ladies of the Port Ewen Methodist Church. This makes the third year that they have furnished the "eats" for the visiting horticulturists.

The exhibit at the Municipal Barn is composed largely of tractors, three Ulster county firms being represented: Fred Groene, agent for Allis Chalmers, has a display of tractors; C. E. Perry of Wallkill and H. S. Forde of Hurley have tractor displays, showing McCormick-Deering and International. There is also a display of Cletac tractors and the G. L. F. has a display featuring sprays and fertilizer. At least one nursery concern also takes space in the barn for a display.

Eastman and Van Alstyne Judge Apples

One of the first things to be done at the annual meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society is the judging of fruits exhibited by 4-H members and the Future Farmers of America. Above judges Percy M. Eastman, left, of the Plant Industry Bureau of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets and Louis H. Van Alstyne, of the state experiment station at Geneva, examine closely two of the apples on display.

WILDLIFE EXHIBITS ARE SHOWN

One of the most popular exhibits at the annual Horticultural show is the one of Department of Interior's booth in rodent control. In the booth are two live porcupines and a red shouldered hawk. Here Howard Merrill introduces Mr. Hawk to Mr. Porcupine. In addition to these there are live muskrats, prairie dogs and several other smaller rodents in addition to many preserved specimens.

Car Crashes Elephant

Crashing into a huge bull elephant on a turn in the Bulaway road, 65 miles from Beit Bridge, a motorist of Messina, Rhodesia, had to run for his life. The impact shattered the windshield and the man was cut about the face by the glass. Seeing the beast towering above his car, the driver leaped out. A short distance away he was picked up by another car. Returning to the curve he saw the elephant push his car over and make off into the thick bush, trumpeting fiercely.

For the benefit of those not familiar with the standards for judging apples, the following table is printed: Form, 15 per cent; size, 15; color, 25; condition, 15; freedom from blemish, 30 per cent.

Homemaking Section

The 4-H Club homemaking girls of the Eastern District, 4-H Clubs, have a demonstration booth of apple cookery in a portion of the restaurant, just off the main floor at the auditorium at the right of the main entrance.

The booth is in charge of Miss Charlotte Waters of Poughkeepsie and Miss Millie Robinson of Middletown. 4-H Club associate agents. There are eight counties represented—Ulster, Orange, Sullivan, Greene, Dutchess, Schoharie, Rensselaer and Fulton, with at least two 4-H girls from each county, assisting in the work. Different groups have charge on the three days of the show and demonstrations are given of the many ways in which apples may be used—in pies, puddings, cakes, salads, etc. Free samples of the various dishes are given to visitors to the booth.

Today the booth was in charge of the girls from Orange, Sullivan and Fulton counties and the menu consisted of apple crisps, Waldorf salad, apple fritters, applesauce cake and apple foam.

Thursday Ulster county's two representatives, Laura Brown and Barbara DuBois, will be among those helping at the booth.

In addition to the demonstrations and the free samples, the girls are distributing two different recipe booklets and a third folder, prepared by the New York and New England Apple Institute, which in addition to a number of recipes gives a table illustrating a half dozen New York apples and characterizing each one as to its qualities for eating, pie and sauce, salads and baking. The writer noted that while a number of apples receive a "best" rating for certain uses, only one, the Northern Spy, gets a "best of all," and that is for pie and sauce. In the eating class it is given a "best" rating, along with McIntosh, Cortland and Delicious. Next to the Northern Spy, the Greening and Baldwin get the call for pie and sauce, receiving a "best" rating for these purposes.

PARTICIPANTS IN DISTRICT SPEAKING CONTEST

Catharine Balfe of the famous "4-H School," the Rock School at Rifton, was winner in the speaking contest held at the county building on John street Tuesday night and will represent the Ulster-Orange-Rockland district at the finals at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday night, on the occasion of the annual dinner which marks the eastern meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society.

County Agent E. R. Bower is naturally highly elated at having an Ulster county girl win the elimination contest for this district and secure a place in the finals. Miss Balfe's address discusses the value to the housewife of having apples properly packed and graded.

This makes at least twice that a girl has been the winner in the elimination contests for this district. Miss Mabel Story of Ulster Park, having won the contest on one occasion. In at least four years since the contests have been held in connection with the horticultural show here an Ulster County 4-H member has been among the final contestants.

In 1933, the first year of the show here, Arthur Williams of Highland was one of the three dinner speakers. William Limbacher of Savkill also was one of those making the finals on another occasion.

Those who participated in the contest last evening are shown above. Chinese Buy Bonds
In the first 11 months of the Chungking government's National Reconstruction Savings Movement $50,000,000 worth of National Reconstruction Savings Bonds were bought by Chinese both in China and abroad. Other deposits in Chinese banks, which now maintain branches even in small villages, also increased. Chungking leaders declare this strong indication of faith in the nation's new "savings network" proves that China can advance toward her goal of national reconstruction by her own strength.

Majority's Drive To Reduce Budget 'Tables' Defense

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—State finances won right of way over defense measures in New York's legislature today as the Republican majority's drive to reduce Governor Lehman's lowest budget in five years gained momentum.

Any revision of the Democratic governor's $385,000,000 budget—$9,000,000 lower than the present appropriation program expiring June 30, and eliminating a one per cent emergency tax on personal income—will be acted upon quickly after a February 12 public hearing, leaders said.

While the governor met with some 200 representatives of municipal and county defense councils yesterday both Republican and Democratic lawmakers placed a major portion of his prepared program before the Legislature.

Assemblyman Harold C. Ostertag announced that a model defense program for states, recommended at a conference in Washington, was embodied in the bill.

Ostertag said, the bills would: Make destruction of property with intent to hinder the nation's preparedness for defense or war a felony.

Permit persons associated with defense materials to post their property and prosecute a trespasser on a misdemeanor charge.

Restrict or close a highway which is believed to constitute a danger to defense work.

Require licensing of possessors, dealers and manufacturers of explosives and call for records of all sales.

Enable the state guard to cross the state line in pursuit of saboteurs or enemy forces and permit other states similar authority.

"The measures," Ostertag added, "preserve the rights of labor. The rights which they have now are specifically protected."

Four to Be Sent As Replacements

Group Slated to Leave City on February 4

Four men will be sent to the induction station in Albany on Tuesday, February 4, as replacements for the men rejected in the January 16 quota of the Kingston Selective Service Board.

The four replacements are: Arthur Crispell of 50 Meadow street.

Frank G. Bunce of 186 Third avenue.

Myer Levine of 180 Washington avenue.

Herbert C. Wolff of 65 West Union street.

The first three men named are volunteers. The fourth youth is a son of Alderman and Mrs. Herbert Wolff, and is the third son to be called for federal service. One brother, Bernard, enlisted in the army last July and is now enroute to Porto Rico as a member of Company K, 18th Infantry, while another brother, Raymond, enlisted in the navy several weeks ago and is now stationed at the Newport Training School.

It is interesting to note that Alderman Wolff was one of three brothers who served during the World War with the U. S. Army. The 15 men to be sent from Kingston on February 10, have not yet been selected by the local draft board.

Seven Arrested

Five autoists were arrested Tuesday on charges of overtime parking. Another was held on a charge of illegal parking in a restricted area. All seven autoists furnished bail for their appearance later in police court. The five charged with overtime parking were: John R. Henry of Andrew street, John H. Travis of Kerhonkson, Richard K. Whiting of Wilton, N. H., Robert G. Flieg of Milwaukee, Wis., and Milton Travis of RFD, Kingston, John V. Daily of Pittsburgh, Pa., was charged with parking in a restricted area, and Everett J. Cure of Margaretville with illegal parking.

Cadets Score Win Over J. Y. A. in Division A Debut, 65-37

Ed Snyder Scores 20 for Winners; Maurer Tops All

Madden Aces and Morans Also Triumph in Second Half Games of City Basketball League

The second half of the City Basketball League got under way on Tuesday evening with the Cadets, Morans and Madden Aces coming through with victories. Russ Maurer was the high scorer in the final records with a total of 28 points.

After winning the first half of Division B in easy fashion, the Cadets, now in Division A, failed to find the pickings any more difficult and proceeded to blast out a 65 to 37 victory over J. Y. A. The winners led at the half by 25-13.

Snyder and Toffel sparked the powerful Cadets to this high-scoring victory. In the third session the J. Y. A. tossers managed to cut some of the Cadets' edge but for the remainder of the game the Division B first half champs broke wide open and coasted in with an easy triumph. Eddie Bahl paced the losers with 16.

Following a disappointing first half Morans appeared last night with a new batch of faces and then went on to defeat the new entry, DeMolay, by 48 to 26. Russ Maurer did just about everything right for the winners and scored 28 points, two more than the entire DeMolay squad. The losers had a two-point lead in the first half. Costello rumped in 11 for Morans.

The final contest found the Dead Enders taking another licking, this time from the Madden Aces, paced by Culver Ten Broeck and Fisher. Ten Broeck, the lanky center, collected a high of 16 points. Fisher found the card for 11. Khederian and Barnes were high for the Dead Enders with nine markers.

Competence And A Flair For Color Click For Pat Kennedy

'It's on you—one shot' . . .

This is the first of a series of four stories on top officials in basketball, football, boxing and baseball, giving inside information on the different phases of their jobs.

By FRED BROWNING

AP Feature Service Sports Writer

New York—The man in the fancy shirt tooted mightily on his whistle, went into an exaggerated drum major's strut, and screamed: "You walked!"

The young rule breaker meekly tossed the ball to his accuser and an appreciative chuckle rippled through the basketball crowd of 16,000 at Madison Square Garden.

That's the double effect Pat Kennedy has been getting for 17 years from a combination of competent officiating and a flair for showmanship.

The Hoboken Irishman swears that his colorful court performance is purely natural:

"That's just my way of calling 'em. I work every game with my heart and soul in it. If I seem enthusiastic—well, I just am."

Enthusiastic Not the Word

Enthusiastic is hardly the word,

'Jump ball, I'll take it' . . .

for Paddy. He follows the ball like a hawk, toots his whistle almost gleefully when he catches a wrongdoer, and zips immediately into his act to signal the nature of the violation.

Some evening, showing a hacking foul, Pat is going to break an arm—he brings the right down across the left like a woodchopper working on an eight-inch log. For hipping he uses a hip-throwing routine that has the Broadway burlesque girls green with envy.

To signify holding, Kennedy's wrestling solo would shame most grunt and groan specialists who work in pairs.

That's the Kennedy the showman. But there's a Kennedy the official, too. There must be, because Pat gets some mighty important assignments.

Pat, who started his foul-calling career at 15 in a Hoboken athletic club preliminary when an official failed to show up, now works one game of almost every collegiate doubleheader at the Garden.

Because of their intersectional nature, these games are especially tough to call. Pat explains:

"Different sections interpret the rules differently. Our biggest headache, the block by a player who has just passed the ball, is a direct result of that fact. In the East, players and coaches agree that the passer, after the pass must not contact the man guarding him, providing the guard gives the offensive man three feet in which to move.

'No-o-o basket' . . .

"The western interpretation gives the passer more leeway toward brushing his guard out of the play after the pass."

Pat credits intersectional games with going a long way toward a universal interpretation on that and other troublesome rules.

Speaking of rules, Pat is all for the faster game (three times as fast, he says) now in effect—even if it does put a greater strain on officials as well as players. He explains that today's official must be faster than the play itself to keep on top of the game. He must look ahead, anticipate every move and be there to see the play when it happens.

To get in shape, Kennedy spends two hours a day in a gym for six weeks before the season starts. He works baseball in the summer up until mid-July, then goes in for golf and swimming. During the winter days he's a physical education instructor in a Hoboken junior high school.

Pay for big-time basketball officiating varies, but a big game between hot rivals—Army and Navy, let's say—is worth about $75 to officials like Kennedy. Average big games run about $50.

He Admits Errors

Kennedy is no Bill Klem—he admits missing one now and then. He tells about an L.L.U.-Duquesne game in which an illegal field goal carried the contest into an extra period. A Duquesne man was fouled as he missed a shot and another Duquesne man made the follow-up. Action was so fast, says Kennedy, that he thought the original shooter had scored. He signaled "basket counts" when it really shouldn't have. Only two persons saw it, Pat reports, and L.L.U. finally won anyway.

Pat's showmanship, usually a crowd-pleaser, can be pretty grating if your red-hot favorites are losing. It boomeranged on Pat once, in a pro league championship game, and players had to escort him to his dressing room.

Pat stayed there for three hours—practicing new dummies—until it was safe to leave.

Out for New Record

Phillipi, W. Va., Jan. 29 (AP)—If Ken Griffith, who plays forward for Alderson Broadus College, scores 20 points against Salem tomorrow night, it won't be news. He has an average of 22.25 points for 12 basketball games this season. But if Griffith scores 22 points, it will be news, for Hank Luisetti, who played a better-than-fair game for Stanford several years back, will assume the status of a former college basketball scoring champion.

Dodgers Sign Two

At least part of the Brooklyn Dodgers' battery combination is satisfied. Kirby Higbe, obtained from the Phillies, and Fred Fitzsimmons, were signed Tuesday. But as far as the catching was concerned, Mickey Owen, ex-St. Louis Cardinal, is still on the hold-out list. Owen rejected his third Dodger document yesterday.

Yanks Sign Three

Two rookies and a regular agreed to terms offered by the New York Yankees yesterday. Charlie Keller, star outfielder and Norman Branch and Rinaldo Ardivio sent in signed contracts. Keller was in a slump last season but is expected to hit his regular form in the coming campaign.

Mize Is Holdout

One reason why the St. Louis Cardinals were such a threat to all National League Clubs was the fact that Johnny Mize, slugging first sacker, was on the roster. But so far Johnny can't see the contract offered him by the Redbirds. Mize returned his 1941 document yesterday and explained that he thought he deserved more money.

Gets Break by Draw

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 29 (AP)—The luck of the draw promised Atlanta's Dorothy Kirby participation in two feature matches today as the Miami Biltmore women's golf tournament moved into the double round stage. Miss Kirby, who eliminated Mrs. Mari on Hochheimer of New York 9 and 7 yesterday, was bracketed in the second round against Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., a former Biltmore winner.

Odds and Ends

Tony Canzoneri, on a refereeing tour, is being honored by Italian societies in every town he visits. . . . Ernie Smith, star tackle for the Green Bay Packers, has been acting as rope marshal in some of the open golf tournaments on the coast. . . . Tommy has 200 hours on the air to his credit since the football season, which is why the academics at Michigan are hollering—or whatever learned gentlemen do. . . . The real reason why Maxie Baer doesn't care whether he fights or not is that he has $200,000 tucked away in annuities and will start drawing $1,000 a month any day now.

Skaters to Seek Vacant Speed Title

North American Meet to Be Held This Week-End

The North American Outdoor Speed Skating Championships will be held in Schenectady in conjunction with the Schenectady Winter Carnival from January 31 to February 2 inclusive. Good weather conditions are reported for the meet.

The championships will take place on Central Park Lake under the sanction of the American Skating Union of the United States and the Amateur Skating Association of Canada. It will be sponsored by the Schenectady Junior Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the department of parks and recreation.

Stiff competition for the championship crown, left vacant by "Maddy" Horn, last year, is expected to develop among senior women skaters. However, it is expected that skaters from the eastern section of the country will figure prominently in the senior women's events.

In winning last year's title Miss Horn won the 220-and-440-yard races as well as the three-quarter mile. Last year's nearest competitor was Louise Herou of Minneapolis, Minn.

Carmelita Landry, who is the skater who took the half-mile from Miss Horn in 1940, will be hard pressed by Louise Herou, Virginia Baum, St. Louis, Mo., and Genevieve Swierkos, Chicago, Ill.

Russell Defeats Benoit, 125-102

Both Billiard Stars Have High Runs of 16

Two leading contenders for the crown now held by Fred Plantebar met in the resumption of the city pocket billiard tournament Tuesday evening at Nick Kaslich's Billiard Academy and after some close play Meine Russell defeated Eddie Benoit by 125 to 102.

Both cueists had high runs of 16 but Russell, the cagy billiard expert, managed to pull out in front of his opponent and then went on to win the match. Thursday evening Harold Quick will meet Walt Jeghers in another match which should supply plenty of thrills.

Wheeler Will Get New Try at His Special Jinx

Dallas, Jan. 29 (AP)—Otis Kittredge Wheeler will have another try at the jinx that has dogged his army ambitions.

First he feared registration day would find him too young. But the President set the date on Wheeler's 21st birthday.

He volunteered in the first quota but the doctor turned him down.

Wheeler went home and trained himself into condition for another examination, and passed. The day the board's first quota was made up, he fell and broke his ankle.

Now he's back in shape and yesterday the board booked him for call on February 6.

Gas Explosion Precedes Finding of Man's Body

West New York, N. J., Jan. 29 (AP)—An explosion of illuminating gas rocked Memorial High School early today when a janitor entered the gas-filled domestic science room and found the body of William H. Lounsbury, 48-year-old supervisor of manual training in the West New York schools.

The janitor was not injured. Lounsbury had been held last night in $5,000 bail after Police Lieutenant Joseph Marsino disclosed his arrest on a morals charge involving a girl student. He had denied the charges.

The explosion blew out all windows in the building. Classes were cancelled for the day. Officials said gas jets in 10 stoves had been turned on.

New York's Welfare Dept. Is Subject of Inquiry

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—An inquiry into activities of the city welfare department has been launched by Investigation Commissioner William B. Herlands.

The investigation was disclosed yesterday at the trial of a suit brought in state supreme court by an ousted relief worker who charged she was dismissed because of anti-Communist activities.

In a letter to Leopold V. Rossi, the plaintiff's counsel, Herlands said he was investigating at the request of Welfare Commissioner William Hodson, and added: "Entirely apart from the merits of your client's dismissal on charges of incompetence, the city is interested in making an investigation to determine whether charges of Communist activities made in your petition are true."

Strikes Bill Introduced

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Legislation to set up machinery, patterned on the National Mediation Act, to curb strikes on naval projects of all kinds was introduced today in the house.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 29 (AP)—Stock market leaders retreated fractions to more than 2 points today in step with steels.

Rallies were feeble and prices near the final hour were around the lowest of the day. Transactions increased on the decline. Turnover was at the rate of about 600,000 shares for a full session.

Offerings centered on United States Steel as traders studied the big producer's fourth quarter earnings report. Some called the profit of about $2 a share on the common for the final period of 1940 "disappointing" in view of previous estimates but others noted special charges had been made against earnings.

U. S. Steel soon was off 2 and steels slipped with it, including Bethlehem, Youngstown and Republic. Also conspicuous losers were duPont, International Harvester, American Smelting, American Can and Anaconda.

Corporate bonds resisted better than stocks. Major commodities were included a bit lower on the whole.

Curb shares down fractions to about a point at one time included Aluminum of America, American Gas & Electric, Bell Aircraft, Humble Oil and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Stimson Says Aid Bill Would Help U. S. Defend Self

the strain under which German power is laboring."

The Japanese army, he continued, was spread out even thinner than the German, and the country was economically strained.

"If Britain survives the next several months, he said, 'the Axis powers cannot indefinitely hold even the European world in slavery' for they would be without seapower and the control of the air would be against them."

Turning to the legal questions, Stimson cited the action of the International Law Association in interpreting the Kellogg-Briand pact. The association held that if Timken Roller Bearing Co. was attacked by another, the other signatories, without any breach of international law, may come to the aid of the attacked nation with money, supplies and even armed forces. He pointed out that the Axis nations, as well as the United States and Britain signed this pact.

Congress, he said, would be exercising its powers by establishing the national policies in the present situation. "But congress," he added, "can neither consider nor decide each and every transaction that may be necessary successfully to execute these policies." That required executive action, and Stimson said he could conceive of no more appropriate person for that responsibility than President Roosevelt.

Two Youths Held For 19 Burglaries In Mountain Area

Troopers Claim Admission to Theft Series by Boys Who Resided Short Time in Region

Two boys, both in their teens and both comparatively new residents of Mt. Tremper, were apprehended Tuesday by State Police and deputy sheriffs and charged with a series of burglaries which have been reported during the past month in the vicinity of Mt. Tremper and Mt. Pleasant.

Before the officers had completed questioning the two lads they not only had solved several reported crimes but the boys, according to the officers, admitted entering several other places where the entrance had not yet been reported. In all 19 burglaries were admitted.

Edward Doyle, 17 years old, of Mt. Tremper, is in the Ulster county jail awaiting grand jury action on charges of burglary, having been held to await grand jury action by Justice of the Peace William C. Weyman of Phoenixia. The other youth, a 15 year old boy, was paroled in the custody of his parents for a hearing in Children's Court, where he will face a juvenile delinquency charge instead of third degree burglary charge because of his age. His name was not divulged by the officers because of his youth.

The Doyle youth has been a resident of the town of Shandaken for some time but has lived at Mt. Tremper only a short time. The burglaries apparently were all committed between December 18 and January 24, and included entrance to several large summer boarding houses which have been closed for the winter. Several private summer homes were entered and there were numerous smaller places visited, according to the statement which the officers say they secured after the apprehension.

Several Reported. During the past few weeks several burglaries have been reported by the residents of the locality but in addition to the reported burglaries the officers said they had admissions of at least six unreported burglaries.

Several of the places entered are summer residences and the owners reside in New York city or vicinity and have not visited their summer properties in several months.

One of the boys resides with his parents on the road running from route 28 past the Brookside at Mt. Tremper, while the younger boy lives at Mt. Pleasant.

The Cockburn House at Mt. Pleasant, the Brookside House at Mt. Tremper not far from where young Doyle lives, and the Mountain Breeze Hotel on the Mt. Pleasant-Phoenixia road were among the hotels entered.

Camps Entered. Among the private places entered was the camp of B. J. Winne, Kingston hardware dealer; the Ray Canitz camp, on the Mt. Pleasant-Phoenixia road, and the Abe Bromberg summer home.

Discovery of the entrance to the Winne and Canitz places last Saturday was responsible for the arrest of the two. The burglary of these places was reported to State Trooper Ray Dunn at Phoenixia and an investigation led to discovery of other places which had been entered. State Trooper Reilly and Deputy Sheriffs Clayton Vredenburg Tuesday took up the investigation which resulted in the arrest of the two who attended Fleischmanns High School.

When the Winne and Canitz burglaries were reported to Trooper Dunn he made an investigation and found 11 more places in the vicinity ransacked. What has been taken from the properties which had been broken into could not be ascertained since the owners reside in the metropolitan area and several of them have gone to Florida for the winter.
